

Based in Boston, Massachusetts, the core Heavy America sound finds its influence in a diverse blend of rock idioms, from the expertly performed progressive rock circles to the edgy and incisive sounds of alternate rock rebellion. Blend in a pinch of stoner rock, and the listener has transcended the run of the mill, stagnant musical forms that occupy a good deal of the digital music we hear today. Yet, Heavy America manages to defy the conveniences of category, presenting an arsenal of sounds and moods while unlocking a natural ability to employ a fiery insurgency across the seemingly endless styles the band works within.

Heavy America is: Michael T. Seguin, lead vocal & guitar
Dan Fried, drums & vocals / Budd Lapham, bass & vocals

"Motor Honey (Peace)"* the new single from Heavy America

"Calling out to an age of classic rock where heavy, fractured guitars and snarling vocals rallied like war-torn battle cries, "Motor Honey (Peace)" is a bellowing, rumbling, pedal to the metal anthem."
